Four Collisions Reported By City Police On Monday

Four traffic collisions were investigated by the Murray Police Department on Monday, according to the reports filed by the officers. No injuries were reported.

At 12:50 p.m. Elizabeth Broach Jeffery, 1903 Farmer Avenue, driving a 1962 Plymouth four door sedan, was going north on 18th Street.

Mrs. Jeffery said she was meeting a car that was going south on 16th and pulled over, hitting a 1964 Ford four door sedan parked at the curb on 18th Street, according to Patrolman Moxell Phillips.

The Ford, which remained parked at the curb, was owned by Tom Eugene Decelle of Troy, N. Y. It was reported damaged on the left side.

Damage to Mrs. Jeffery's car was on the right front fender.

A three vehicle collision occurred at 4:10 p.m. in front of South Side Restaurant and was investigated by Patrolman Phillips.

Vehicles involved were a 1964 Chevrolet pickup, driven by Tarleton Wade Crawford, 1107 Olive Street; a 1966 Ford station wagon, driven by Willie Rexter Cunningham of 302 N. Cherry Street; and a 1961 Pontiac four door sedan, driven by Martha Craig Thorn of Alto Road One.

Patrolman Phillips said Crawford came out from the restaurant, pulled across Highway 641, and hit the Cunningham car going south on the highway.

The Cunningham car then hit the Thorn car that was waiting for traffic on the west side of the highway, police said.

Damage to the Crawford truck was on the right side, to the Cunningham car on the right and left sides and front end, and to the Thorn car on the front end.

Fifteen minutes later Patrolman Phillips was called to North 4th and Chestnut Streets where a two vehicle collision occurred in the accident were a 1966 Ford two door hardtop driven by Ann Hamilton Watson of Murray Route One, and a 1962 International truck owned by M. & H. Construction Company and driven by Madison W. Stubbfield of Murray Route Five.

Mrs. Watson was going west on Chestnut Street and Stubbfield was going north on 4th Street when the collision occurred, police said.

Mrs. Watson said she thought the truck was going to make a right turn and the driver said he had his signal lights on to make a right turn, according to the police report.

The fourth collision occurred at 7:05 p.m. at Poplar and 12th Street and was investigated by Patrolman Phillips.

Cars involved were a 1964 Comet four door driven by Shirley Jean Jones of 103 South 12th Street, Murray, and a 1968 Chrysler four door driven by Harry Spillman Bolser of Paducah.

Police said both drivers said they stopped at the four way stop before the collision. Damage to the Jones car was on the left front and to the Bolser car on the left side, according to the police report.

Murray Golfers To Play At Paducah

Five other lady golfers from the Oaks Country Club will play in the Tri-State Golf Tournament at Paxton Park, Paducah, on Wednesday.

Other women who were not included in the list run on Monday are Doris Rose, Betty Buchanan, Geri Anderson, Sue McDougal, and Betty Thompson.

They had just passed through the town of Wapella, Ill., when the tornado struck. They said that 90 per cent of the town of 700 was destroyed. Trees fell in front of their car and behind it causing some damage to the front end of the car.

The hailstorm was so bad they thought all the glasses would break out and the car rocked like a toy. Fortunately no one was injured in the car.

Requests were made at churches on Sunday for help to clear the debris in the afternoon. Those called were among those who volunteered.

The family started to stop in Wapella, but were only fifteen miles from home and probably thought they could make it home before the storm struck. They had stopped just after passing through the town because of the blinding rain.

Dear Jim:

As you know, our recent blood drive was most successful. Our quota for the year was 708 units and our two drives produced 727 actual donors.

This means that for the coming year citizens of Calloway County are assured of blood whenever and wherever it is needed, and will be charged only the cost of administration.

This is due to the efforts of many people. It might be surprising to the average recipient of blood to know how many have worked long and hard to provide this precious commodity.

As overall coordinator of the drive I would like to express my personal gratitude to the participants by describing the bloodmobile operation and the work of our local volunteers.

The bloodmobile arrived at the First Methodist Church at 8:30 a.m. with the technical equipment needed for the day. A crew of R.O.T.C. students unloaded the heavy boxes, coats and other materials, and assisted in setting up the units.

Light Turnout Is Expected Over The State In Primary

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Democratic and Republican no-homers for the U.S. Senate seat held by retiring Republican Thurston B. Morton will be selected today by Kentucky voters from a field of 16 candidates in the primary election.

Political observers were predicting that less than 1 out of 4 registered voters would go to the polls, which close at 6 p.m. local daylight time. Skies were partly cloudy to cloudy with occasional showers in the weather forecast.

In addition to the Senate contests, there were eight congressional races in six districts and two Court of Appeals contests, both for the seat currently held by Chief Justice Squire Williams.

Two other Lexingtonians rounded out the list of four major candidates in the 12-member Democratic field.

They were former state Democratic party chairman Foster Ockerman, 47, and former state Rep. Ted Osborn, 41. Ockerman was endorsed by the party's 1967 gubernatorial nominee, Henry Ward.

In the Republican race, Jefferson County Judge Marlow Cook, 42, of Louisville, was the favorite to beat former five-term Congressman Eugene Siler, 67, of Williamsburg, Cook.

Brown, 68, of Lexington, making his seventh Senate bid, was endorsed by state Sen. George Davis, D-Louisville, while state Rep. Hughes McGill and Mae Street Kidd joined her in a Louisville press conference. He had previously been endorsed by the Kentucky AFL-CIO.

Sen. Davis had been critical of Brown's chief opponent in the race, former state Commerce Commissioner Katherine Peden, the only female member of President John's special commission created last year to study urban disorders.

Miss Peden, 42, of Hopkinsville, criticized the commission's recommendations of a guaranteed annual income and federal open housing legislation.

She was cast in the favorite's role for the primary, mainly on the basis of a strong endorsement by former Gov. Edward T. Breathitt.

Weather Bad

The weather was described as "very, very bad" in the West. Atlantic, with winds gusting up to 65 miles an hour, whipping up 20-foot seas. Because of this, there was speculation that the sub's skipper, Cmdr. Francis A. Slocum, 36, of Virginia Beach, Va., might have decided to wait things out off the continental shelf.

But Cmdr. David M. Cooney, public information officer at Atlantic Fleet Headquarters in Norfolk, reported early today: "We have used every method possible to contact the ship but nothing worked."

If the Scorpion is lost, it would be the worst American submarine disaster since the Thresher, also nuclear-powered, was lost with 129 men aboard off the New England coast April 10, 1963.

Third Disaster

It would be the third world sub disaster this year. The Israeli sub Daker disappeared in the Eastern Mediterranean four months ago with 69 officers and men. Two days later, the French sub Minerve disappeared with 54 crewmen 20 miles south of Toulon.

The Scorpion is an attack submarine, designed to seek out and destroy enemy subs rather than fire missiles at land targets.

The killer subs do not carry Polaris missiles. They are armed with torpedo-like, nuclear-tipped projectiles called Subroc. The Subroc is designed to be fired underwater, to rise above the surface, then dive on to enemy submarines.

The Scorpion proved its ability to stay submerged for long periods in 1962 when it set an underwater endurance record of 70 days. Long periods of radio silence are not unusual with vessels of the nuclear submarine fleet.

The Navy can send undersea messages to its submarines anywhere in the world, using low-frequency radio. But a submerged vessel's ability to reply is much more limited.

Subs normally come up far enough to extend an antenna above water. If disabled on the bottom, they can float up a buoy and transmit in that way.

Huge Armada Of Ships And Planes Search The Atlantic

By DONALD H. MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An armada of Navy hunter planes, warships and submarines fanned out over a 2,100-mile stretch of the gale-lashed Atlantic today searching for the "overdue" nuclear-powered submarine Scorpion and her 99 men.

From the Azores to the Virginia capes, all-weather P2 and P3 sub hunter planes — packed with sophisticated electronic gear designed to detect submerged submarines — flew low over the stormy seas hoping to make contact with the Scorpion.

Vice Adm. A. F. Schade, commander of the submarine forces for the Atlantic Fleet arrived off the Virginia coast early today aboard the nuclear submarine Pargo to take charge of the 37-ship task force hunting for the Scorpion.

Diving Bells

Six other nuclear submarines, running submerged with their sonar probing the ocean depths, were also taking part in the search for their sister ship. Three submarine rescue vessels — which carry diving bells — were standing by.

Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, probably the world's foremost expert on nuclear submarines, told newsmen in Washington: "We just don't know what happened. We just can't tell."

The Scorpion, which was reported "overdue" at Norfolk, Va., at mid-day Monday, was last heard from at 8 p.m. EDT May 21, when it radioed a position report just south of the Azores.

It was making a submerged run home from a 6th Fleet training mission in the Mediterranean.

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chief of naval operations, said he was concerned about the Scorpion but stressed that the Navy still considers the vessel "overdue" and not "missing."

Use Care When You Install TV Antenna, Walker

Most television set owners are unaware of a potential danger when installing their tv antenna, according to John Edd Walker, Manager of the West Kentucky Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation.

"There have been some tragic accidents resulting from tv antennae contacting electric lines," Walker said. "The accident occurs when the antenna is being erected, moved, or repaired, and it is allowed to touch an energized overhead electric line. The antenna should be placed far enough away from lines so that there is no chance of contact."

Walker said that negligence in installing antennae has caused an average of one death or injury each month in the Tennessee Valley region over the past several years.

The National Safety Council is aware of the potential hazard. It is pursuing the suggestion that manufacturers enclose warnings in each tv antenna kit that is sold.

Eddie Matthews Hits Homers To Become Sixth Best Hitter

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

Eddie Matthews, baseball's vagabond slugger without a home, continued his nomadic climb in the record books Monday night.

Matthews' traveling act stopped in Anaheim where he hit the 511th and 512th homers of his career to surpass Mel Ott and become the sixth best home run hitter in the history of the game.

As usual, the fans had to be told about the event they had just witnessed.

The place where Matthews lives was a hero Milwaukee doesn't even have a team now and Matthews' exploits have received little of the fanfare that was lavished on Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle when they achieved similar milestones.

"They announced it," Matthews remembers when he hit his 500th homer for Houston in San Francisco.

They didn't even do that in Anaheim Monday night for Matthews, who now wears a Detroit uniform and saw the two homers go for naught as the Tigers suffered a 7-6 loss to the California Angels in 12 innings. It also was somewhat typical that after hitting back-to-back homers he was taken out of the game and didn't have a shot at a third straight.

Tying Home Unnoticed

When Matthews hit his 511th homer in the fifth to tie Ott, there was no announcement to inform the fans that he had tied Ott on his previous time at bat. The fans then gave him a hand—and the small crowd of 8,712 gave him quite an ovation when he immediately slammed his 512th. Both came off Sammy Ellis, another former National Leaguer.

There have been few ovations for Matthews since the halcyon days in Milwaukee. Matthews knew the best of those hysterical days since he came up with the Braves in 1952 when the club was in Boston. But then it all ended when the Braves were shifted to Atlanta. He was then traded to Houston before being shipped to Detroit late last season.

Matthews' homer in the fifth narrowed the Tiger deficit to 3-2 and his homer leading off the seventh narrowed it to 5-4. Later in the seventh, Norm Cash hit a two-run pinch homer to put Detroit ahead 6-3. Since Detroit had the lead, Cash was left in the game at first base for defensive purposes and Matthews was lifted.

But Bubba Morton singled in the tying run in the bottom of the seventh and Tom Satriano doubled in the winning run in the 12th off reliever Daryl Patterson.

Cut League Lead

The loss cut Detroit's lead to one-half game over idle Baltimore.

Elsewhere in the only other three games played in the majors, Houston drubbed Los Angeles 10-1, Cleveland nipped Minnesota 3-1 and Boston topped Oakland 3-2.

Jim Wynn and Rusty Staub each collected three hits and drove in three runs to lead Houston past Los Angeles.

Staub's hits enabled him to boost his average to .337, second in the National League. Don Wilson pitched an eight-hitter to get the victory.

With a runner on third and two out in the seventh inning, the Twins decided to walk Larry Brown to pitch to pitcher Stan Williams. But the move backfired as Brown stole second and Williams singled in two runs to map a 1-1 tie and give Cleveland the triumph.

Elston Howard's sacrifice fly in the seventh inning scored Joe Foy with an unearned run as Boston edged Oakland. Gary Bell went the route for the third straight time to boost his mark to 5-1.

GREEN COACH

WATERVILLE, Maine — Richard Green, captain of the 1963-64 Boston University rink team, was named varsity hockey coach at Colby College Sunday. Green's career as a player ended in 1964 when he suffered a neck injury in a trampoline mishap.

Frank Frisch of St. Louis was the National League's first Most Valuable Player award winner in 1931.

San Diego And Montreal Are Added To National League

By ED SAINSBURY
UPI Sports Writer

CHICAGO — San Diego and Montreal were added to the National League today to complete a 12-team circuit which will begin competition in 1969.

The two teams were announced Monday night after more than 10 hours of almost steady deliberation by the league and its 10 established teams.

Each of the established teams will be permitted to protect 15 players and each can lose a maximum of six in the draft by the two new teams.

Bidders from Milwaukee, Buffalo and Dallas-Fort Worth were turned down in favor of the two new teams, although President Warren Giles said "all five of the applicants are great groups."

Beval Manager

Jean Louis Levesque will be head of a group of eight which will hold the Montreal franchise, while C. Arnold Smith, Doug Giddings, and Buzzy Ba-will be its general manager. San Diego will play in its new 45,000 seat stadium while Montreal will play in the Expo '67 stadium, which will be expanded immediately to 40,000 seats, until a new domed stadium seating 55,000 is completed.

Selection of the two new teams, the second time in six seasons that the NL has added a pair of new franchises, completed a course which was set a month ago when the league voted in favor of expansion for 1969 if there could be unanimous agreement on the two new members.

Process of Elimination

Roy Hofheinz of Houston was believed to have opposed the Dallas-Fort Worth bid and the Atlanta Braves were believed to have opposed Milwaukee.

Expansion of the National League was triggered by an earlier American League decision to add Kansas City and Seattle to its membership for 1969.

The American League also has gone on record favoring separation into divisions for competition in 1969 and was to meet today to settle which teams will be in each division as well as to adopt the type of schedule it will play.

National League owners discussed schedules for 12 team leagues, but it was known that several owners objected to divisional play. The two leagues were to meet jointly today and Giles said schedules and divisional play would be major topics.

George Halas Retires From Chicago Bears

CHICAGO — George Halas, "with reluctance but no regrets," Monday retired as head coach of the Chicago Bears after 40 years as a pro football player and coach.

The 73-year-old Halas' announcement immediately touched off speculation that one of his youthful assistant coaches, Jim Dooley, 38, would be named head coach.

The grand old man of professional football told the crowd gathered in his newly refurbished Loop office that the new coach would be announced on Tuesday. He later told a news conference that the head man would come from within the Bear organization.

He said he had come to realize his coaching days must end when he discovered he could no longer indulge in a favorite pastime—running up and down the sidelines upbraiding the referees.

The unhappy moment came during the last game of last season, he said, when he tried to chase after an official who was pacing off a penalty and "I realized I wasn't gaining on him."

"There was strong temptation to continue for another season," Halas told reporters. "But looking at the practical realities, I am stepping aside now because I can no longer keep up with the physical demands of coaching the team on Sunday afternoons."

Halas, a legend in his own time, was charter member of the pro football Hall of Fame. "Papa Bear" said he had reached the decision to call it quits on his own.

In so doing, Halas ended a career that started in Decatur, Ill. in 1919 when he founded the Decatur Staleys before bringing them to Chicago in 1921.

Halas, a perfectionist, amassed many records that are unchanged in professional football.

He coached the team 39 of his 49 years as owner and leaves a record of 321 victories, 142 defeats, and 31 ties.

Under Halas, the Bears won the world championship six times, finished in first place in the NFL nine times, second in the NFL 13 times and had two perfect seasons—1934 and 1942.

Three Stock Car Drivers Show Performance on Sunday

By TERRY WOOTEN

CHARLOTTE, N. C. — Despite the rain, the 1968 World 600 stock car race Sunday may have provided a glimpse of future performance by at least three drivers relatively new to the grand national circuit.

Donnie Allison of Hueytown, Ala., Paul Bud Moore of Charlotte, and Charlie Glotzbach of Georgetown, Ind., all showed the drenched fans at the Charlotte Motor Speedway they can hold their own with the more experienced super-speedway drivers.

Allison, NASCAR's 1967 Rookie of the Year, started off the World 600 time trials with a bang Wednesday by setting two new track records. He smashed the one-lap record by hitting 180.180 miles per hour and set a new four-lap qualifying record of 159.222 to grab the pole position.

He finished second in the same lap with Buddy Baker Sunday in the 600 and is convinced he would have caught and passed Baker's Dodge if the rain hadn't forced the race to be called.

Moore, driving a 1968 Dodge Charger, probably provided the most exciting minutes of the race Sunday. In his second season of grand national driving, Moore charged from his 15th starting position into the top five early in the race.

When the green flag was dropped following the final postponement by rain, Moore whipped to the front. He held the lead for 22 laps in all before losing the transmission in a duel with Baker for the No. 1 spot.

"I'll guarantee you little Bud Moore arrived today," a veteran race observer said after the race. "Leading a race will do more for his confidence than anything else possibly could."

Moore agreed. "It was the greatest feeling in the world leading the race. I guess the only feeling any better would be winning."

Glotzbach began to attract the attention of fans and racing observers May 11 at the Rebel 400 in Darlington, S. C. when he and Baker locked in a tight battle for the lead at one point in the race. He was forced to drop out of the 400 with engine trouble but stuck around and finished sixth in Sunday's 600.

Now teamed with master mechanic Cotton Owens, Glotzbach, who goes by the nickname "Charging Charlie," proved Sunday he could also stick around for the finish.

MILAN, ITALY — Sandro Mazzinghi of Italy won the world junior middleweight boxing crown with a 15-round decision over Kim Ki Soo of South Korea.

DANGER VALLEY

A new Western thriller
BY RICHARD POOLE

From the Doubleday & Co. novel. Copyright © 1966 Lee E. Wells. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 1

WHEN they topped the low ridge on their return to the ranch house, Greg Corwin reined in and Hobe Terrall, with an over-the-shoulder look of surprise, pulled his horse haltingly around, bleak eyes narrowing in something like fright and suspicion.

"Something wrong?" The younger man shook his head. He sat tall and slender in the saddle, gaze slowly ranging east to west along the high sharp line of mountains marking the northern boundary of Sioux Valley. Rich grass broken by timbered areas made windbreaks against the snow and blizzards of winter, low hills broke the valley into distinct areas. Greg's chest lifted with his full breath, softly expelled and his tawny eyes grew soft.

Terrall's husky voice broke the silence. "This is all Tumbling T range north to the Dark Hills. Can't see 'em. Hidden by that timber coming down from the northeast. County seat's five miles beyond."

Greg, still drinking in the country ahead and below, asked, "How about the neighbors?" The old rancher indicated directions. "Bar Y, the biggest, bounds up north and east. Rest of the spreads about the size of Tumbling T. Anchor over there—Rocking Chair up that way. South and west, four smaller outfits. All of 'em doing good but, of course, Bar Y ships the most cattle out of Sioux Valley."

"Where's the shipping point?" "Thirty miles north of the valley. But it's no drive at all. Good grade and clear road all the way, even through the mountains. I never had no trouble—and no one else."

Greg's sudden smile softened angular jaw and chin, lifted to his eyes in a sparkling glow. "Let's get back to the house." He spurred his horse to a trot and Terrall caught up with him a few yards farther on.

The old man shrewdly appraised the broad shoulders, muscular back and arms, remembering long ago when his own had been as powerful. As Corwin half turned to look off to the west, Terrall noted the smooth way in which his torso moved and the jut of jaw and chin suggesting courage—or stubbornness. Terrall's dry lips faintly twisted. Corwin would need both if he stayed in Sioux Valley.

The old man's wrinkled face grew bland when Corwin threw a glance back at him. He waved Corwin to one of the two another question. Now, the riders crossed a grassy rise and threaded between low hills. The vista ahead opened as they broke free of the hills and again Greg Corwin reined in.

Terrall, cutting impatience, stopped just beside him. Below, and across the wide away, stood the buildings of Tumbling T. Corwin studied them, trying to see them coldly through a mounting inner excitement. The buildings looked solid and sturdy, from rambling ranch house and bunkhouse under the trees to the few corrals, the barn and work-buildings.

Terrall couldn't help asking, "Like the looks of it?" "Range and buildings, yes. But the beef tally—"

"You're a cattleman. When's tally ever exactly right until a round-up or a head count? I won't hold to the book figure. I try to be fair."

Corwin chuckled like an eager boy as he looked slowly over the valley in a round-up, circling sweep. His deep voice held a new vibrancy. "Let's get to the house and talk."

Terrall moved ahead. Unseen by Corwin, his seamed face showed relief. They trotted into the ranch yard, reined in before the house. An old cowboy sat in the late afternoon sun before the bunkhouse door, watching Terrall and the stranger grumble their horses and move to the house.

Terrall pushed open the heavy door and stepped into the big main room ahead of Corwin. He turned as Corwin closed the door behind him and swept off his hat, revealing black hair, sweat damp where the hatband had pressed. Terrall said sharply, "You're ready to talk business?"

"I'm ready to make the deal, Terrall—pending one question."

"First, let me throw one. You're a puncher—worked for wages and it ain't like a hired rider has the kind of money I want for Tumbling T. I ain't going to fool around with mortgages and notes and such. All of it cold cash. Are we wasting one another's time?"

The young man dropped his hat on a chair, pulled his faded, checked shirt out of his trousers, revealing a money belt around his slender waist. He unbuckled it, opened one of the leather pouches and produced banknotes. Terrall's eyes bugged slightly and he said dryly, "Drinks are on me. Come on."

He led the way down a short corridor to a small room that served as ranch office. He waved Corwin to one of the two chairs and Greg sat down. The window faced him and he could look directly at the bunkhouse many yards away, see a corner of the stable and the corrals beyond.

Terrall pulled a whiskey bottle and glasses from the bottom drawer of the scarred rolltop desk, poured, handed a glass to Greg. "Here's to a dicker."

They drank and Terrall settled deep in a cushioned chair before the desk. "I've showed you my range and beef. You've seen the house and the buildings. You're getting a steal."

"Why? What haven't you showed me or told me?" "I ain't hid nothing. Corwin. Why? Because I've worked myself half crippled, first for forty and found then building up this spread. I could stay until I die, but the ranch'd go to the Territory. I reckon. No heirs. Doc tells me to get out of Wyoming—head to the desert. So I'm willing for hard cash to sell price and take care of myself down around Tucson somewhere. That satisfy you?"

Greg saw, through the window, the rolling spread of rich grass beyond the buildings, a far line of timber. His eyes glowed. "Sounds better than fair. How about crew?"

"Your problem. They're free to sign on with you or ride off. If they stay, you got a good bunch. If they leave, others can be hired in Redman."

"I'll see how much payroll I can meet."

"Your problem again. Now—you buying Tumbling T?" "Yes."

Terrall nodded, choking back an audible sigh of relief. He covered it by swinging to the desk and taking paper and pen. "First, I'll do a bill of sale and receipt. Then deed and order to change title. Got the abstract right here."

He turned to a small iron safe, whirled the knobs and opened the door. He took out a thick bundle of papers. "Represents homestead grants and transfers, some graze I bought twenty years ago. Altogether, it's the range you saw."

As Terrall busied himself writing, the younger man walked to the window, looked out on the yard. His chest rose on a deep breath, fell—and at that moment he took possession. He noticed the old man and two stubble-beard punchers near the door of the bunkhouse.

Terrall dropped his pen. "There it is. Count out the money and sign this acknowledgment."

Dear Abby

Part-time Friend Partly Cloudy

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am 56 years old, am married, but have been separated from my husband for 12 years now. I have had a bachelor boy friend for 6 years. He's about 30, is wonderful company, but he's not the marrying type. He does seasonal work in this area from May until November, then he takes off for the west, and I don't see him again until the next May.

He lives 30 miles from here, and drives in every night to read the newspaper and watch TV with me. He doesn't dance or bowl, or like to go anywhere, but he does have a nice car and plenty of money.

I am not getting any younger, Abby. I wrote to you about this problem 3 years ago, but I don't recall ever seeing your answer in the newspaper. I need advice. Will you please predict what kind of future you foresee for me? RESTLESS IN N.Y.

DEAR RESTLESS: You have a part-time "boy friend". (If you can call a man who parks at your place to read the newspaper and watch TV a "boy friend"). And what good is his nice car and money if you don't go anywhere?

You say he isn't the marrying type. If he were, you already have one husband, which is all the law allows. "Prediction": Continued mild, followed by cool winds from the west. No change.

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Pete) and I are in our mid-twenties, have been married three years, and have a 2-year-old son.

Pete has always had a hot temper. Well, last week we had an argument which got a little out of hand, and Pete hit me and knocked me down. The baby was in the same room and saw everything.

My problem is now the baby won't have anything to do with his father. When Pete comes near him, the baby turns his head away and cries. If Pete tries to touch him, he screams and draws away.

This hurts Pete something terrible. I keep telling him that the baby will forget, and get over it in time, but will he?

PETE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: The baby may, in time, become more "forgiving"—but don't count on him to forget. In the meantime, unless you enjoy being knocked down, I advise you to persuade Pete to get some professional help in learning how to control his temper.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "no name, Ohio," whose brother-in-law worked in the postal service and seemed to have a lot of "free money" of soap, toothpaste, etc., as well as magazines with the addresses cut off.

My husband also works for the postal department, and we don't get any "free anything" because of it. All undeliverable samples and magazines are distributed to the local hospitals, mental institutions, and training centers.

You will find a few bad apples in every barrel, but on the whole, the men in our postal department are a bunch of honest, hard-working loyal guys who aren't appreciated nearly enough. WALSTONBURG, N. C.

DEAR WALSTONBURG: To which I would like to add, "AMEN."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WAITING FOR THE LAST LAUGH." How sad that you would consider another's humiliation a good reason to enjoy a laugh. Would you believe Goethe, who said, "By nothing do men show their character more than by the things they laugh at."

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69794, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

was endorsed by Morton to be his successor.

Cook's favorite role was due in part to the neutral position taken by Gov. Louie B. Nunn, a longtime personal political friend of Siler's.

Few issues developed during the campaigns, with the personalities of the candidates and past records being emphasized. In congressional contests, incumbent Democrats Frank A. Stubblefield and John C. Watts, were receiving stiff battles for renomination.

Stubblefield, 61, of Murray, was opposed by Paul J. Durbin, 50, of Fulton, in the 1st District race, while Watts, 65, was in a tight battle with J. Dan Chandler, 34, of Versailles. Chandler is the son of former two-term Gov. A. B. Happy Chandler.

The Court of Appeals race saw Williams, 50, of Frankfort, hard-pressed by Fayette Circuit Judge Scott Reed, 46, of Lexington, and Stanford attorney Marvin Cornett.

blood in a time of crisis. They hold one, two, even three gallon donor cards. This year, however, we had 126 "first-timers" and we think this is a sign of increasing community awareness.

Blood processing stopped at 4:00 p.m., and another R.O.T.C. clean-up detail moved in. By 6:00 p.m. everything was cleaned away and the drive was over. The F.B.I.A. Club of University High, Mrs. Lanette Thurman, sponsor, will type donor records and cards as the final action of the project.

In addition to those who work during the day many others provide services and materials in advance of the operation. The Pepsi and Coca-Cola companies donated soft drinks. Murray Coal and Ice Co., and the Calloway Co-op have provided ice and containers for the drive.

The Kappa Alpha handled recruitment, and the Rescue Squad hauled items to the church. Needless to say, we are deeply indebted to the officials and members of the First Methodist Church for use of their facilities. Mr. Paul King, custodian, is most helpful to the workers.

I know of no community effort which depends so wholeheartedly upon the support and weak afterward. At the very least, it took some amount of time from knowing that one has given something for which there is no substitute and which may possibly save a life.

Speaking for the Red Cross Board of Directors and myself I would especially like to thank our Blood Program Chairman, Bill Boyd. He devotes a lot of time to our drive and serves, as do all Red Cross Volunteers, without pay. Thanks are also due Major William Hudson who recruited many donors from the university.

If there is any one whom I have overlooked — and so many help that it is entirely possible — it is most unintentional. For all these hours of service what does Calloway County receive? From a financial angle, 727 units of blood at the lowest price charged, $25 per unit (many hospitals charge up to $50) would be $18,175. Calloway County citizens have been saved this much, which is almost three times the amount budgeted by the United Fund for the entire operation of the Calloway County Red Cross Chapter. The drives cost about $50 (for drawing, processing, and storing the blood) per year, and was donated by the Sigma Department of the Woman's Club, the Moose, Lions, and Kiwanis Clubs.

services of those involved. And I certainly know of no adequate way to express my gratitude. I can only say that without such support my job would not be difficult; it would be impossible. Thank you!

Sincerely,
Mrs. Jean Blankenship,
Executive Secretary,
Calloway County Red Cross.
